brass, aluminum American

Designed by Eugene Schoen, this Art Deco Theatre Light, was manufactured by Kantach & Co. for the RKO Roxy Theatre which was built as a sister theatre to Radio City Music Hall in 1932. The theatre boasted a 3,700 seat auditorium, and an elegant Grand Foyer where this light was likely installed. The theatre was demolished in 1955. These lights remain an important historical artifact whose elegant design echoes not only the rich history of Rockefeller Center, but New York City as well.
